Comments:

On a weekend of ultra-running on the North Yorkshire Moors, Hardmoors 55 and Cleveland Survival, there was a good turnout of 99 starters and finishers for the toughest fell race in Esk Valley Fell Club/Northern Runner winter series.

The A-rated medium is a test and can catch the unwary out. With two descents and one climb on the outward leg to Fryup Dale and the reverse on the return, including a mile long climb to the finish, runners need to leave something in the tank.

The weather was reasonably kind, sunshine with a slightly chill north westerly wind, was marred by a mizzle mid-race, but its doesn't get much better in March on the North Yorkshire Moors.

The top three was established on the outward leg, though they remained in close order for the duration with 20 seconds separating first from third in the final reckoning and with a hill-top finish they were all captured in a single photo shot

Dragon's Back winner 2015, Jim Mann of Durham Fell Runners claimed the race victory, his time of 81.50 was a few minutes shy of the race record, in second was Harry Holmes of York Knavesmire Harriers adding to his recent spate of top 3 finishes, followed in by Chris Roberts also of the York club. Add to them, Samuel Allin in 6th and veteran runner Barry Atkinson in 11th and Knavesmire claimed the male team prize. It would have been closer if Durham could have mustered another top 10 finisher.

In the ladies race, Scout Adkin also of Knavesmire had a terrific run to finish 8th in 90.38 and claim a course record by eight minutes. Along with team mates, Nik Vogen in third and Cassie Holmes in seventh, they matched the men with team victory too. Liz barker, Ellenborough AC ran well to claim second but just couldn't match Scout's speed on the day.

Thanks go to the marshals, the Lion Inn for hosting the registration, its now onto the final race in the winter series 2015/16, Gisborough Moors on 17th April.
